Madison's (Kim Dickens) return in Fear the Walking Dead's season seven finale delighted fans of the series

The dark side

Fear the Walking Dead*'s eighth season is here and a surprise return character is set to cause chaos

FEAR THE WALKING DEAD (s8A)

Starts May 15, Mondays EXPRESS at 6.30pm, Encore at 10pm and watch On Demand

FOX SHOWCASE [112]

▶ Coming off the back of what critics hailed as its best season in years, the first half of Fear the Walking Dead's eighth outing certainly has a lot to live up to – and if the last season finale is anything to go by, we're in for a whopper eight episodes.

The sudden reappearance of Madison (Kim Dickens) was a shock to viewers, largely because the fierce warrior seemingly died in a sacrificial blaze (literally) of glory to save her children, Nick (Frank Dillane) and Alicia (Alycia Debnam-Carey), back in season four. Although the 'death' happened offscreen, her dramatic last stand took place in a fiery stadium overrun by walkers, making it look pretty final.

"Madison is a foundational character to The Walking Dead Universe – heroic, complex, an everyperson who becomes a warrior and then a force of benevolence," says Scott M Gimple, Chief Content Officer of AMC's The Walking Dead Universe. "Kim Dickens' raw talent, strength and brilliance will electrify... once more."

Before the decision by FTWD showrunners Andrew Chambliss and Ian Goldberg to eliminate one of The Walking Dead spin-off's most popular characters, co-creator Dave Erickson had originally planned for Madison to evolve into a villain in season seven.

"The thing that's interesting to me, and one of the questions I asked myself and [comic book creator] Robert Kirkman very early on, was: 'Of the people in our group, who do you see becoming the Governor (David Morrissey)? Who could become a Negan (Jeffrey Dean Morgan)?'" Erickson once explained. "That's interesting to me, to watch an evolution of a character and start with them as a hero and bleed that into antihero, and bleed that into full-on villain."

So will we see an even darker side of Madison this season? Given that we now know some of what she's been doing all this time – stealing children for shady operation P.A.D.R.E. – and that her kids are no longer around, anything is possible. She did come back from the dead, after all.

She's a man-eater

Say bonjour to an unmissable French-language crime-drama

Walter Iuzzolino

▶ TV-loving streaming curator and producer Walter Iuzzolino brings us yet another top-quality foreign drama in The Mantis, also known as La Mante. Dive into this addictive French mystery series focused on a serial killer nicknamed La Mante (Carole Bouquet), who agrees to help the police catch a deadly copycat killer terrorising Paris.

Stuck in solitary confinement since her arrest some two decades earlier, La Mante will only cooperate with the authorities on the condition she works solely with Detective Damien Carrot (Fred Testot) – who happens to be her estranged son.

This six-episode crime-drama is full of dark twists and turns, made all the richer by watching in its original language.

Jailed serial killer La Mante (Carole Bouquet) works with her detective son (Fred Testot) in French thriller The Mantis

"Subtitles force you to concentrate and so you invest more in the piece," Iuzzolino says. "It's a treat. It's like the cinema coming into your own living room. You have to uncork a bottle of wine, sit down with your partner and actually pay attention. And I think it adds a layer because [while] you're watching a story, you're also reading a story. And so it has the intimate pleasure of the novel."

1 IT'S AN EYE-OPENING LOOK AT ETHICAL HUNTING Over eight episodes, we follow six Australians living off the land, sustainably hunting, venerating animals and utilising all they have to offer. "Being an ethical hunter to me means only taking what I need and making sure that the resource is still going to be sustainable for further generations," affirms Eamon (pictured), who teaches hunting courses in NSW.

2 IT'S A FAMILY AFFAIR In Queensland, Ben and his father enjoy their first wild boar hunt together in years – bringing both men to tears. For chef and outdoor enthusiast Sarah, from Tasmania, hunting with brother Nathan unites her loved ones through her cooking: "When you actually kill and harvest your own produce… you want to create something beautiful with it."

3 IT'S A FAIR CHASE The hunters always maintain their respect, forgoing vehicular chases or electronic devices to give the animals – all of which are considered agricultural or environmental pests – a just advantage. As Ben explains: "It's done sustainably, it's done respectfully, it's done legally."

▶ For the first time in the franchise's 24-year history, three SpongeBob SquarePants shows will collide to create one weird, wacky universe in SpongeBob SquarePants Presents The Tidal Zone. This one-hour special will see characters from Kamp Koral: SpongeBob's Under Years and The Patrick Star Show intertwine as GrandPat (voiced by Dana Snyder) makes his way through the dimensions.

"Every frame was a gift," Snyder reveals to FOXTEL magazine of the special, hosted by the French Narrator (Tom Kenny). "Frankly, I did not understand how it was all going to work, then I saw it and thought, 'I guess I should just trust them!'"

Jill Talley, the voice behind computer Karen Plankton, admits it took a little convincing to come around to the "strange" crossover concept.

"It's like when someone tells you, 'Try this ice-cream!' and it's cilantro [coriander] and pecan, or some crazy recipe, and you go, 'That's weird.' And then you try it and go, 'Oh my gosh, it's so great!'" she says.

During our chat, Clancy Brown slips momentarily into the inimitable voice of Mr Krabs, insisting the idea was not too far outside the box.

"When they said, 'This time, you're going to be in three worlds,' it's like, 'Okay, strap us in and let's go!'" he explains.

Kenny, who has also provided the unique voice of SpongeBob since it began in 1999, says the cast is still so proud to be making the show.

"It sounds corny and phony but we laugh a lot – still," he beams. "I can't think of any other job in show business or out of it that could be this much fun. And we love our characters."

Bill Fagerbakke (Patrick Star) agrees: "If you don't have fun doing what we're doing, you should get yourself to a doctor!"

For Talley, Kenny's wife of 28 years, it's been "a really fun thing" to be a part of SpongeBob's history, not to mention a real family affair: "Our son is 25, so he was the first-generation SpongeBob watcher, discovering this weird show for the first time!"

“I would never judge a character”

From her famous siblings to finding empathy in her latest role as an axe murderer and entering the Marvel Universe, Elizabeth Olsen lays it all on the line

LOVE & DEATH

*Starts EXPRESS April 27, Thursdays from 8.30pm and watch On Demand

FOX SHOWCASE [112]*

For much of her adolescence, Elizabeth Olsen was known as Mary-Kate and Ashley’s little sister. Growing up in the shadow of her famous siblings, it perhaps seemed inevitable that she would follow the former Full House child stars into acting – to everyone except Olsen, that is.

“I thought I was going to be on Wall Street,” she admits. “I don’t know what I wanted, I was just good at math. And I’m good at sciences, so [I thought] maybe I should do something like that. But, at the end of the day, I really love acting.”

Having spent much of her life on TV and film sets with her sisters, one thing a young Olsen was adamant about was that she didn’t want to capitalise on her siblings’ fame to get a leg-up in the industry – something that’s particularly timely right now, the term ‘nepo baby’ becoming a worldwide derogatory catchcry.

“I was 10 and I was curious about auditioning… but, during that time, I thought, ‘I don’t want to be associated with [Mary-Kate and Ashley],’ for some reason,” she explains. “I guess I understood what nepotism was, like, inherently as a 10-year-old. I don’t know if I knew the word, but there is some sort of association of not earning something that I think bothered me at a very young age… I did think, ‘I’m going to be Elizabeth Chase [her middle name] when I become an actress.’

“It was insanity,” Olsen adds of her childhood. “There were times when my sisters would always be spotted and I would be in the car with them and it would really freak me out. It has helped me navigate how I want to approach my career. I always had this need to prove myself to everyone around me that I work really hard. I couldn’t walk in a room without everyone already having an opinion. The thing about nepotism is the fear that you don’t earn or deserve the work.”

Yet, while the twins had both stepped away from the cameras by their mid-20s to establish their now-hugely successful fashion line The Row, Olsen was just getting started.

After launching onto the world stage with the 2011 film Martha Marcy May Marlene to critical acclaim, the roles continued to come in quick succession.

In 2014, she unofficially dipped her toe into the Marvel Universe with a post-credits scene in *Captain America: The Winter Soldier, before her character Wanda Maximoff/Scarlet Witch was formally introduced to the franchise in 2015’s *Avengers: Age of Ultron. Four subsequent films cemented her status as a bona fide Marvel superhero/supervillain, while in 2021 she even got her own limited series spin-off, WandaVision (watch all titles on Disney+ via the FOXTEL home screen).

“[It was] such a surprise,” she admitted just last year of how her character has developed into a leading lady in her own right. “I mean, I also didn’t sign a big contract with Marvel, so I continue to be surprised every time they use me. I wasn’t a title character, so you don’t do that same contract of multiple movies. You only do a little bit at a time. I actually wasn't put in that situation, so it's even more surprising when Kevin [Feige] asked me to do WandaVision."

Allan and Candy's decision to have an affair came after lengthy discussions

Perhaps in a bid to prove she's anything but one-dimensional, the 34-year-old's latest role is as the deeply troubled Candy Montgomery in Love & Death. The limited series tells the true story of the God-fearing Texan housewife, a devoted mother-of-two seemingly happily married to Pat (Patrick Fugit, Almost Famous, watch On Demand), but who was secretly having an affair with her friend Betty's (Lily Rabe, The Wizard of Lies, watch On Demand) husband, Allan (Jesse Plemons, Game Night, watch On Demand).

Allegedly confronted about the affair on June 13, 1980, Candy snapped and hacked her so-called friend to death, landing 41 blows with an axe. She claimed self-defence during her trial and was ultimately found not guilty.

Olsen admits taking on another all-consuming TV role was the last thing on her radar at the time, when she was handed the Love & Death script.

"I actually think I was not looking for a show, because TV is very long and hard, and I wanted to not do another show," she recalls with a laugh. "But reading the first few episodes, and David [creator and producer David E Kelley] wrote so much humour in a different way that I haven't seen from his other projects, and there was a tone of these people in this world, it was really exciting and you're kind of like, 'Well I guess here we go again! Seven months of never seeing anyone again.'"

The complexity of her character and the way Kelley (Big Little Lies, The Undoing, watch both On Demand) painted the picture of the accused was also a big drawcard.

"I fell in love with the way David wrote the first few episodes," she explains. "[Candy] was just so optimistic and resilient and hopeful and striving for more, and had a deep hole in her life. She didn't have any resources trying to fill it. So she's doing the best she can with what she's got and I just loved that about her."

While she acknowledges that audiences will be quick to judge the axe murderer, Olsen insists she personally "would never judge a character" that she's portraying.

"You think of the circumstances that led people to that point," she explains of her process. "You think of their upbringing. You think of their dreams and their wishes and the resources that they have at the moment these things occur that seem pretty absurd.

"I think the reason why this show was particularly interesting to me is that it's a true story and, tonally, it's small-town people dealing with larger-than-life, absurd circumstances. To me, that makes for interesting storytelling and so that was really my focus, not so much judgement on a person's actions… Also, what good does it do a society to just judge people's actions without trying to understand the impetus? So no, I never go in with judgement but with lots of empathy. She was a real dreamer, a real optimist, a real doer. And a fabulous cook!"

For his part, Kelley admits it's not often you're handed such incredible real-life source material that ticks all the boxes.

"It was a true story. If I had written this stuff and made it up, they would have revoked my writer's licence – which has been taken away before – but this time it would have been for good," he notes. "All that stuff really happened. I really felt more like a stenographer than a writer in this one. The story was so juicy and the characters were complex and human. It's not often you find a nostalgic, warm community series that ends with an axe murderer."

As for her preparation for taking on such an emotionally challenging role, Olsen looked to Montgomery's only account of events, as detailed in the 1984 book Evidence of Love: A True Story of Passion and Death in the Suburbs.

"She didn't participate in anything besides the book, so that was my resource," says Olsen. "I didn't have audio to go off, so you make decisions based on the location, the background and the time, as you would for any character. But it's nice to have something to start with… instead of making it all up."

> "[Candy] had a deep hole in her life"
> – Elizabeth Olsen

While it may sound like a dark and twisted ride, director and executive producer Lesli Linka Glatter is quick to insist there are also plenty of light moments in the story: "The first three episodes, there's a lot of humour. Never laughing at the characters – I think we all fell in love with these characters and have a huge empathy – but there are circumstances that are very funny… and a lot of that came out of the description of where people were and what was happening. We didn't make up how long it took for them [Allan and Candy] to discuss having an affair."

"These people, the characters and the story is really strange and really compelling, and I think raises a lot of interesting questions," says Plemons, who adds of his résumé: "I never seek out the dark stuff, but it does seem to find me quite often."

Press rewind as the '80s reel us in for a roller-coaster family saga

A TOWN CALLED MALICE

Starts May 3, Wednesdays at 8.30pm and watch the complete series On Demand

FOX SHOWCASE [112]

A once-feared South London gangster family is forced to flee to Spain in a boisterous new thriller that takes us back to the '80s in all its neon-hued, big-haired glory.

A Town Called Malice centres around youngest son Gene Lord (Jack Rowan), who has tried to steer clear of the criminal organisation run by his notorious dad Albert (Jason Flemyng). But on the day he introduces his new fiancée Cindy Carter (Tahirah Sharif), whom he met in a bar just six weeks earlier, he's drawn into a vicious gangland battle and so, unfortunately, is Cindy.

As a result, the young couple jumps on the first plane to the Costa del Sol, where Uncle Tony (Dougray Scott) has already established what appears to be a life of luxury – and the extradition laws mean they can't be summoned back to England to face justice.

But in true Bonnie-and-Clyde style, trouble seems to pursue Cindy and Gene, as it quickly becomes apparent not all is as it seems.

"Regardless of any ulterior motives that might be there, they've got each other's backs," Rowan tells FOXTEL magazine. "It was important for us that we wanted to make Gene and Cindy be believable. We wanted them to show their love on the screen, so when stuff does go wrong for them, the audience will hopefully believe that they would still be together."

> "I think the writing is so exquisite"
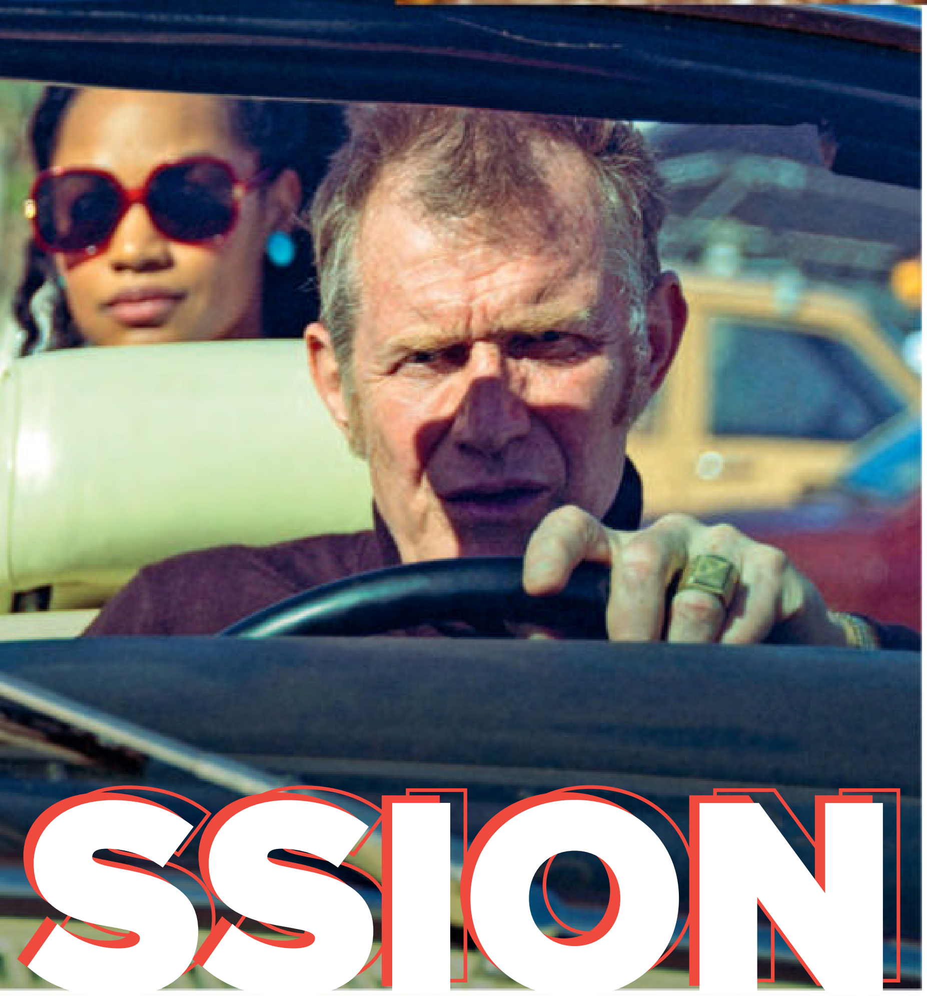
> – Eliza Butterworth

Cindy, who is dealing with issues from her own past, is driven by a desire to belong.

"She doesn't really have a family," Sharif explains of her character. "So when she meets Gene, he becomes her family. And she's willing to embrace the rest of his family as well."

Indeed, Gene's kin are not far behind, seeing business opportunities in Spain as a means to restore their position as top dogs within the criminal fraternity.

Albert Lord (Flemyng) and wife Mint Ma (Plimpton) head up this family of crooks



SSION

Gene (Rowan) and Cindy (Sharif) are on the run in Spain

For American actor Martha Plimpton (Parenthood, watch On Demand), playing Lord family matriarch Mint Ma took her into new territory. Drawn to the honesty of the storytelling, she describes reading the script as "like a fever dream".

"I loved the language, the way people spoke to one another – the lingo, the slang," she reveals.

At the core of the story are the three very different women who have joined the family and become bound by the events that overtake them. Eliza Butterworth, who plays Carly Lord, wife of eldest son Leonard (Lex Shrapnel) and mother to Anthony (George Jaques), says they share a mutual respect.

"All three are so strong, but you see throughout the show how they deal with certain things and how cutthroat one of the female characters is," she teases.

"There's a lot of darkness that seeps into family life. And I think the writing is so exquisite, it really allowed Carly to show facets of herself that maybe she didn't before for fear of being mocked. She's able to gain a whole new insight into who she is."

In a sense, another major character is the '80s, with showrunners making the most of the era's over-the-top fashion and a musical backdrop that features songs by INXS, Duran Duran and Blondie, among others (watch out for a blink-and-you'll-miss-it cameo by Paul Weller, lead singer of The Jam, whose song gives the series its name).

Scattered amid all the drama are moments of levity, which Plimpton tells us are a crucial component.

"They are what earn you the moments of pain or confusion," she explains. "You can't have the pauses without earning them. And these people come from a community of very funny people. South London is a world that has its own very specific kind of humour and its own very specific kind of way of talking, and ribbing. That's a big part of life." F

Sharp fantasy Slip explores what might happen if our choices were different

Mae (Zoe Lister-Jones) bounces from one alternate universe to the next in Slip

SLIP

Starts May 18, Thursdays at 8.30pm and watch the complete series On Demand

FOX ARENA [111]

Multi-hyphenate Zoe Lister-Jones is at it again with her new series Slip. That is, the creator (who brought us apocalyptic comedy How it Ends) is working both in front of and behind the scenes of the scripted drama – the first of its kind for FOX ARENA – as writer, director and star.

The seven-part series follows Mae Cannon (Lister-Jones), a 30-something who's feeling restless in her 13-year relationship with partner Elijah (Whitmer Thomas). Apprehensive about having children in the face of Elijah's eagerness, Mae has a 'slip' and enjoys a one-night stand with Eric (Amar Chadha-Patel) – awaking to find herself married to him!

> "I started writing it in quarantine"

Living in an alternate universe where she's rich and famous, she quickly discovers she's no happier and misses the normalcy she once shared with Elijah.

So begins a fantastical journey into new dimensions – with Mae finding herself in completely different relationships – every time she orgasms. With all traces of her previous life wiped from existence, how will she find her way back to Elijah – and, ultimately, herself?

"I started writing it in quarantine," Lister-Jones previews. "Like so many of us, I was grappling with some pretty big existential questions and that sense of restlessness that came into such hyper-focus as we were all isolated and being forced to look at our lives. There was also a lot of reflection that was happening about paths not taken in our pasts and I became pretty interested in what we do with those 'what ifs' and how they sort of plague us. And so the show was born out of that question: 'What do we do with our insatiable need for something more?' And when that comes to relationships and sexual intimacy, that felt like a very ripe area."

Given Lister-Jones's penchant for exploring philosophical themes of love, loss and regret through otherworldly situations in her previous work, audiences can expect Slip to follow the same pattern, combining sharp writing with clever comedy and some out-there elements to offset that. As for the medium, she reveals the complicated nature of the "world-jumping" storyline better lent itself to TV over film, despite that being predominantly her background.

"I was really interested in television as a filmmaker," she explains. "I've made a number of films and I think the format of television just allows for such expansion and storytelling in a way that I hadn't been able to explore. The nature of this show specifically, because of the world jumping, was so exciting to do in a series rather than as a feature."

King of COMEDY

Saturday Night Live alumnus Pete Davidson brings his unique talents to a new series

▶ What do you get when you combine the skewed worldview of former Saturday Night Live star Pete Davidson with veteran actors Edie Falco (The Sopranos, watch On Demand) and Joe Pesci (Lethal Weapon, watch On Demand)? Bupkis!

More accurately, you get a semi-autobiographical comedy series written by and starring Davidson – with Falco and Pesci playing his mother and grandfather, respectively – that blends grounded storytelling with absurd elements straight from the comedian's unfiltered mind.

This isn't the first time Davidson has tackled elements of his own life on screen. Feature film The King of Staten Island incorporated the star's struggle to come to terms with the tragic death of his firefighter father, Scott, following the 9/11 attacks on New York's World Trade Center.

Eight-episode series Bupkis, however, is closer in style to Larry David's Curb Your Enthusiasm (watch On Demand), in which a fictionalised version of the curmudgeonly comic and Seinfeld writer bumbles his way through life in LA while interacting with famous friends.

Fellow comedic actors Kenan Thompson, Charlie Day, Ray Romano and Brad Garrett are confirmed to guest star, as are actors Simon Rex and Chase Sui Wonders – Davidson's Bodies, Bodies, Bodies (watch On Demand) co-star and girlfriend.

From notching up her "most insane scene ever" in White House Plumbers to that iconic cinematic death and the role she'll never live down, the actress spills all

WHITE HOUSE PLUMBERS

Starts May 2, Tuesdays EXPRESS at 12pm, Encore at 8.30pm and watch On Demand

FOX SHOWCASE [112]

Watching the entire White House Plumbers miniseries was the first time I truly understood what happened with Watergate. It's a huge tragedy and trauma for our country. As many people say, it was the beginning of the disillusionment of America and the government. But in our version, seeing it from our side it is, in a lot of ways, farcical how ridiculous it was. It's not funny, but it is funny. I appreciate that Woody [Harrelson, as disgraced CIA officer E Howard Hunt] and Justin [Theroux, as former FBI agent G Gordon Liddy] were finding that within these roles, and certainly I felt that was indicated on the page.

There wasn't a lot of information about [my character, Fran Liddy]. Dave Mandel [the director and executive producer] and I talked about her. It's interesting and tricky to play a character that is a real person but people didn't really know about and is no longer alive, because it's like, 'How much do I create her?' The thing that all of us – the writers and Dave, and Justin and I – stuck to, that we felt was the best version of storytelling, was her devotion to her husband [Gordon]. And that was really easy to tap into and made a lot of sense for a woman at that time. And it was fun to play that, it was really fun to just love him no matter what.

[The first time you meet Fran] is the most insane scene I have ever read, I have ever acted in! Like, just on so many levels, having to be so 100 per cent committed to this man [Gordon]. Even looking back on it, I can't even believe we got through that scene without laughing hysterically. There were a lot of times we broke character on set for lots of reasons, but that scene in particular, I was like, 'If we can pull this scene off, then I feel like we can do anything!'

Woody and I have done a lot of projects together and I adore him, so that was like seeing family again. And I'd only heard amazing things about Justin and he was all of those and more, like super-fun, super-professional, super-prepared, but in a way that he can throw it all out and have fun with a scene, and make everyone laugh and make everyone feel really comfortable trying new things as well. And I had a major crush on Lena [Headey, who played Hunt's wife, Dorothy] – she's so cool. She is so punk rock.

I am currently really interested in the people on the project. In a situation like this, to work with Justin, Lena, Dave, that is what's interesting to me. And I found Fran to be really challenging. Even though the role is very supporting, she was a real person who's not so documented that people could look something up about her and say, 'You didn't do this,' or 'You should have done that.' I feel like it's even more precious of a character to play, because I want people to see her as something specific and special, and I want to make her proud.

People just love [the 2004 rom-com Suddenly 30], like obsessively love that movie. And I was going to say it just blows our minds, like me and [co-star] Jennifer Garner, but, I mean, I get it. I love that movie, too. But at the same time, we laugh 'cause sometimes we're just like, 'We've done other stuff!' People act like it's the only thing we've ever done.

If you're gonna be killed, being killed by Michael Myers (James Jude Courtney) is pretty badarse! I'm glad I didn't, like, step on a shovel and accidentally hit myself in the head and die! That was a really special kill. When I showed up to Wilmington [North Carolina], where we shot Halloween Kills, I met up with everyone at the local bar. I saw [director] David Gordon Green for the first time since the first movie came out and our amazing special effects guy, James Jenkins. We sat down and were like, 'Okay, how are we going to kill me? And how's it going to be important and beautiful and special, and not just like all the other kills?' So I felt like I was in really good hands because I knew that not only were we going to have Michael kill me, but we were gonna make it special and dreamy and cool. I felt like they gave me a beautiful send-off and we were kind of trying to give, like, Psycho vibes.

GIRL SQUAD

Meet the three women putting their intuition to the test in the ultimate quest for love

FBOY ISLAND

Starts May 29, Mondays from 8.30pm and watch On Demand

FOX ARENA [111]

Sent to a tropical location inhabited by 24 men – 12 of whom are genuine 'nice guys' searching for love and 12 of whom are self-professed 'Fboys' just there for the prize money – a trio of gorgeous, intelligent and eligible young women will rely on their intuition and each other to determine who's who in the hopes of finding The One in new Foxtel Group-commissioned reality series FBOY Island.

Sure, it all sounds like fun and games, but for Molly, Sophie, both 26, and Ziara, 21 (pictured main, from left), the stakes are very real and they took their job seriously as they put it all on the line for the possibility of finding lasting love.

"We definitely worked together," Ziara tells FOXTEL magazine. "We'd go home every night and we had, like, an investigation going on! We gave each other thoughts on the guys we were dating. I don't know what I would have done without Sophie and Molly. I would have been so lost."

While she might not be lacking when it comes to male attention, model Ziara reveals that heartbreak is behind her little sojourn to FBOY Island – though she was there to find herself as much as a man.

"I've always been in quite long relationships and my last relationship, I was cheated on pretty badly," she recalls. "It was really terrible, but it was a massive wake-up call to work on myself. I don't need a boyfriend, I want a boyfriend and, going into this experience, it definitely wasn't all about the boys – getting a boyfriend would just be a bonus."

The feeling's mutual for Kiwi-born Sophie – a professional DJ whose line of work led to her closing herself off to the possibility of love.

"I'm touring every weekend interstate and I see it all," she tells FOXTEL magazine. "I think I've been put off relationships because I've seen what some men do when their partner's not around. I was very closed off for the best part of three years and I just wasn't interested in taking that risk. I avoided love, which is not a good way to be. So I'm really happy with myself that now I can open up my heart."

Joined on their journey by host Abbie Chatfield, who knows a thing or two about the reality dating world, having come to prominence after her stint on The Bachelor in 2019, the women agree her advice and support was second to none.

"It definitely helped a lot that Abbie's experienced this and it really felt like she was looking out for us – she was like a big sister," Ziara explains. "I actually said the whole way through, I wouldn't care what the outcome was – I feel like I just made such good friendships and the girl power aspect really sold it for me."

Adds Sophie: "It was really amazing to have someone to go to who has been in our shoes and who understands why we were nervous and how to deal with that.

"I personally wanted to be a part of this show because it's all about girl power," she continues. "Abbie's morals and what she stands for is something I stand for as well. And look, the fun aspect to it is that the guys get to come on and try to fool us and I was like, 'No-one's gonna pull the wool over my eyes!' Also, I really wanted to find love." ◼

Tamra Judge teases her highly anticipated return to RHOC

▶ After being unceremoniously jettisoned from The Real Housewives of Orange County at the end of season 14, Tamra Judge makes her grand return this month. Having been a part of the show for 12 seasons, the bubbly blonde admits she took her firing badly.

"I got to a state where, the first year, I was in a fetal position, crying," she reflects.

When it came to filming again, Judge says there was tension: "I gave everybody a fing hard time, but everybody was super nice to me and then it made it weird for me, because I was like, 'Why? You danced on my grave when I was gone! And now you're being nice to me? Why?!'"

As for what fans can expect, she promises she won't hold back: "After two years of sitting on the bench... I came back with a lot of energy. [I] had a lot of built-up resentment and anger... Nobody was off-limits."

Alex vs America could see Iron Chef Alex Guarnaschelli chopped from her own show

IRONCLAD COMPETITION

Alex Guarnaschelli faces her biggest challenge yet as America's best chefs take her on

ALEX vs AMERICA

Starts May 15, Mondays at 8.30pm and watch On Demand

LifeStyle Food [125]

Alex Guarnaschelli is the most feared Iron Chef in America, but even she won't be safe from the chopping block when cooking contest Alex vs America debuts. That's right – even though the TV host, career competition cook and executive chef at New York's Butter restaurant is the star of the show, and some of the country's most talented chefs have travelled across state lines to take her on, she could wind up eliminated from her own series if she isn't up to scratch in the blind tastings.

"People think, 'Oh, it's always so obvious; [the judges] are going to know who cooked what,'" says Guarnaschelli. "As someone who has blind-judged and tasted on a lot of shows, you second-guess yourself and are often wrong."

In each hour-long episode of Alex vs America, Guarnaschelli competes against three culinary superstars over two rounds. The catch is that the challengers all share a mastery of the same gastronomic genre – one that they've spent years perfecting.

"We may be at my house, but we're picking from what they're best at," she explains. "What they do with that really is the bigger tipping point. I can only stand there and say – with a lot of bravado – that I have a lot of experience, which is true, but it's [down to] multiple factors and they often have a domino effect."

Round one sees the host, acclaimed chef Eric Adjepong, present Guarnaschelli and the contestants with a theme, after which they must work together to choose their ingredients – a crucial step that could make or break their chances of getting through to the next trial. The dishes they prepare are then blind-tasted by two judges experienced in the episodic theme, with only the top three chefs advancing to the next round and the least successful challenger sent home – even if it's Guarnaschelli. The remaining players then do it all over again, battling for bragging rights and a cash prize for the winner.

With a competitive streak to rival the best and a reputation to uphold, Guarnaschelli declares she won't go easy on her opponents.

"There isn't a chef who is more competitive than I am. Michael Jordan plays basketball, Serena Williams plays tennis, Tiger Woods plays golf, I cook. It's as simple as that," she says.

Adds Adjepong: "It's almost impossible to defeat her one-on-one. But she'll be battling three of America's best chefs at the same time."

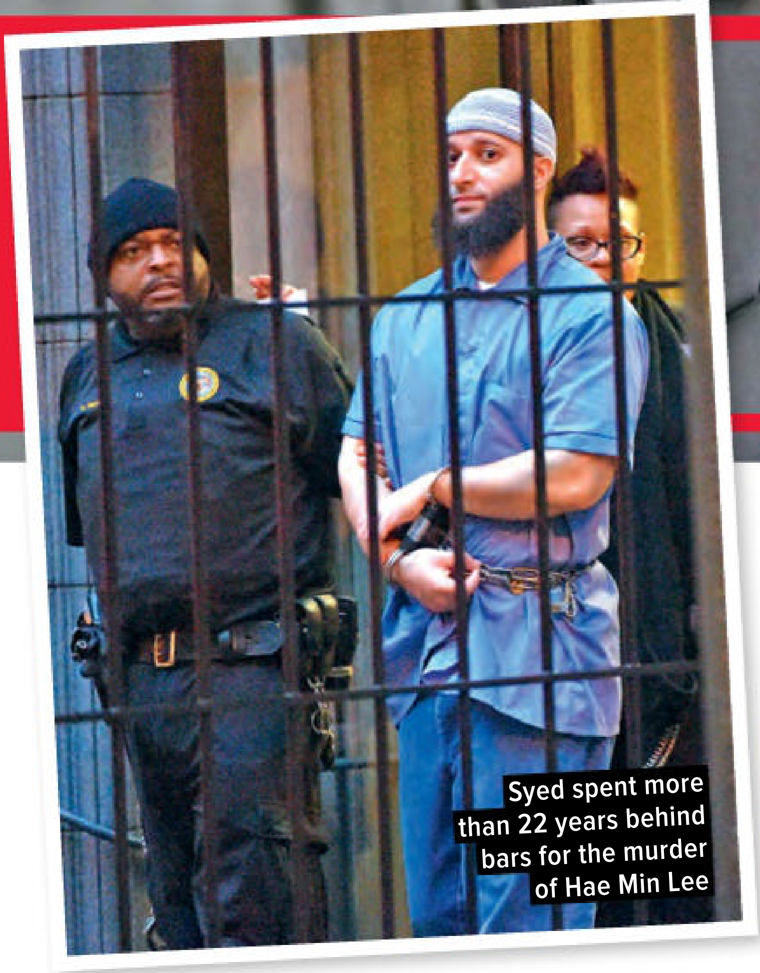
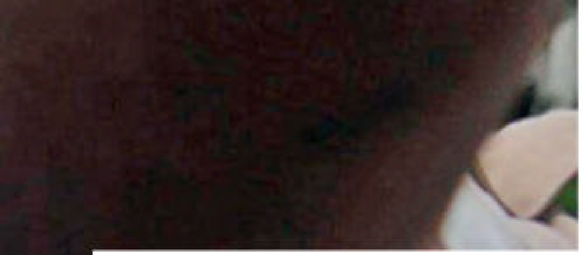
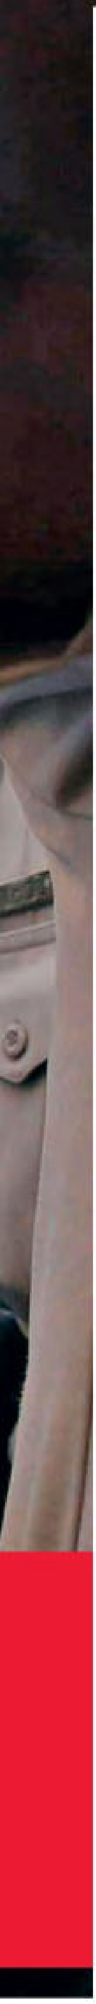
POWER OF THE PEOPLE

Discover the unbelievable story of how one true-crime podcast and the determination of its vast audience resulted in a murder conviction being upended



Syed spent more than 22 years behind bars for the murder of Hae Min Lee





ADNAN SYED: OVERTURNED

Saturday May 20 at 9.30pm and watch On Demand

Investigation Discovery (ID) [136]

Almost a decade after true-crime podcast Serial turned a spotlight on the conviction of Adnan Syed for the 1999 murder of his ex girlfriend Hae Min Lee, he walked free in September last year following more than two decades behind bars.

Through interviews with experts, prosecutors and friends of the pair, Adnan Syed: Overturned chronicles the case that captured the zeitgeist, as well as the role one journalist and her millions of listeners played in the judicial process.

MURDER OF HAE MIN LEE

In 1999, 18-year-old Baltimore high-school senior Hae Min Lee was reported missing by her family after failing to pick up her younger cousin from daycare. Four weeks after she was last seen alive, the honour student's body was found partially buried in the woodland area of Leakin Park, with the cause of death determined as manual strangulation.

Police initially focused their investigation on the passerby who found her, however, an anonymous phone tip soon saw their attention turn to Lee's ex-boyfriend, fellow Woodlawn High student Syed. Although he has always maintained his innocence, he was eventually convicted and sentenced to life plus 30 years in 2000.

SERIAL SENSATION

When true-crime podcast Serial launched in 2014, it became a pop culture phenomenon, with an unprecedented millions hooked on the story of Lee's murder and the criminal case against Syed. Serial was the first of its kind to gain such prominence and set the bar for true-crime podcasts, turning the genre into one of the most popular in the medium.

Over 12 episodes, investigative journalist Sarah Koenig detailed the case, interviewing those involved and citing numerous inconsistencies in evidence, witness testimony and missteps in the judicial process.

It turned out everyone had a theory about what really happened to Lee and armchair experts began digging for their own proof.

FINALLY FREE?

Due in part to the popularity of the podcast and the worldwide attention it garnered, authorities were forced to re-examine the details of Syed's conviction.

During a lengthy appeals process, it was revealed that prosecutors may have withheld from the defence regarding the existence of two other suspects, while a crucial eyewitness testimony providing an alibi for Syed at the time of the murder also came to light.

"After a nearly year-long investigation reviewing the facts of this case, Syed deserves a new trial where he is adequately represented and the latest evidence can be presented," Marilyn J Mosby, the State's Attorney for Baltimore City, said in a press release.

On September 19, 2022 Judge Melissa M Phinn of the Baltimore City Circuit Court vacated the conviction "in the interests of justice and fairness" and Syed was released from prison that same day.

Prosecutors later dropped the charges against him entirely due to new DNA evidence, but Syed's conviction was reinstated in March after it was ruled that Lee's family had not been given enough notice to attend the appeal hearing in person.

A new docuseries details the shocking secret life of Subway's sandwich guy

After losing an incredible 111kg on his self-designed Subway sandwich diet, Indiana university student Jared Fogle quickly rose to fame in 2000 as the company's spokesperson, visiting schools for years while spreading brand awareness for the sandwich chain and chatting to kids about healthy living. He was a superstar, recognised everywhere. But what people didn't know about 'Jared the Subway Guy' is chilling.

New three-part docuseries Jared from Subway: Catching a Monster delves into the horrific secret life behind Fogle's nice-guy demeanour, detailing the allegations of child abuse and pornography distribution that eventually led to his downfall. Fogle was sentenced to serve more than 15 years in federal prison in 2015.

The docuseries features firsthand insight from journalist Rochelle Herman-Walrond, who approached the FBI in 2007 when Fogle made disturbing comments to her about young children. Over four years, Herman enacted a honeytrap plot with the FBI to gather information from Fogle – a task that nearly destroyed her life. Graphic excerpts from her secretly recorded conversations with the predator certainly paint a shocking picture.

Also sharing their stories are two of Fogle's victims, Hannah and Christian, who detail their traumatic experiences living with Fogle's co-conspirator, Russell Taylor, who was married to their mother, Angela Baldwin. Both Baldwin and Taylor were also incarcerated for setting up hidden cameras in their home to capture the girls and their friends undressing.

Catching a Monster is a tough but compelling watch.

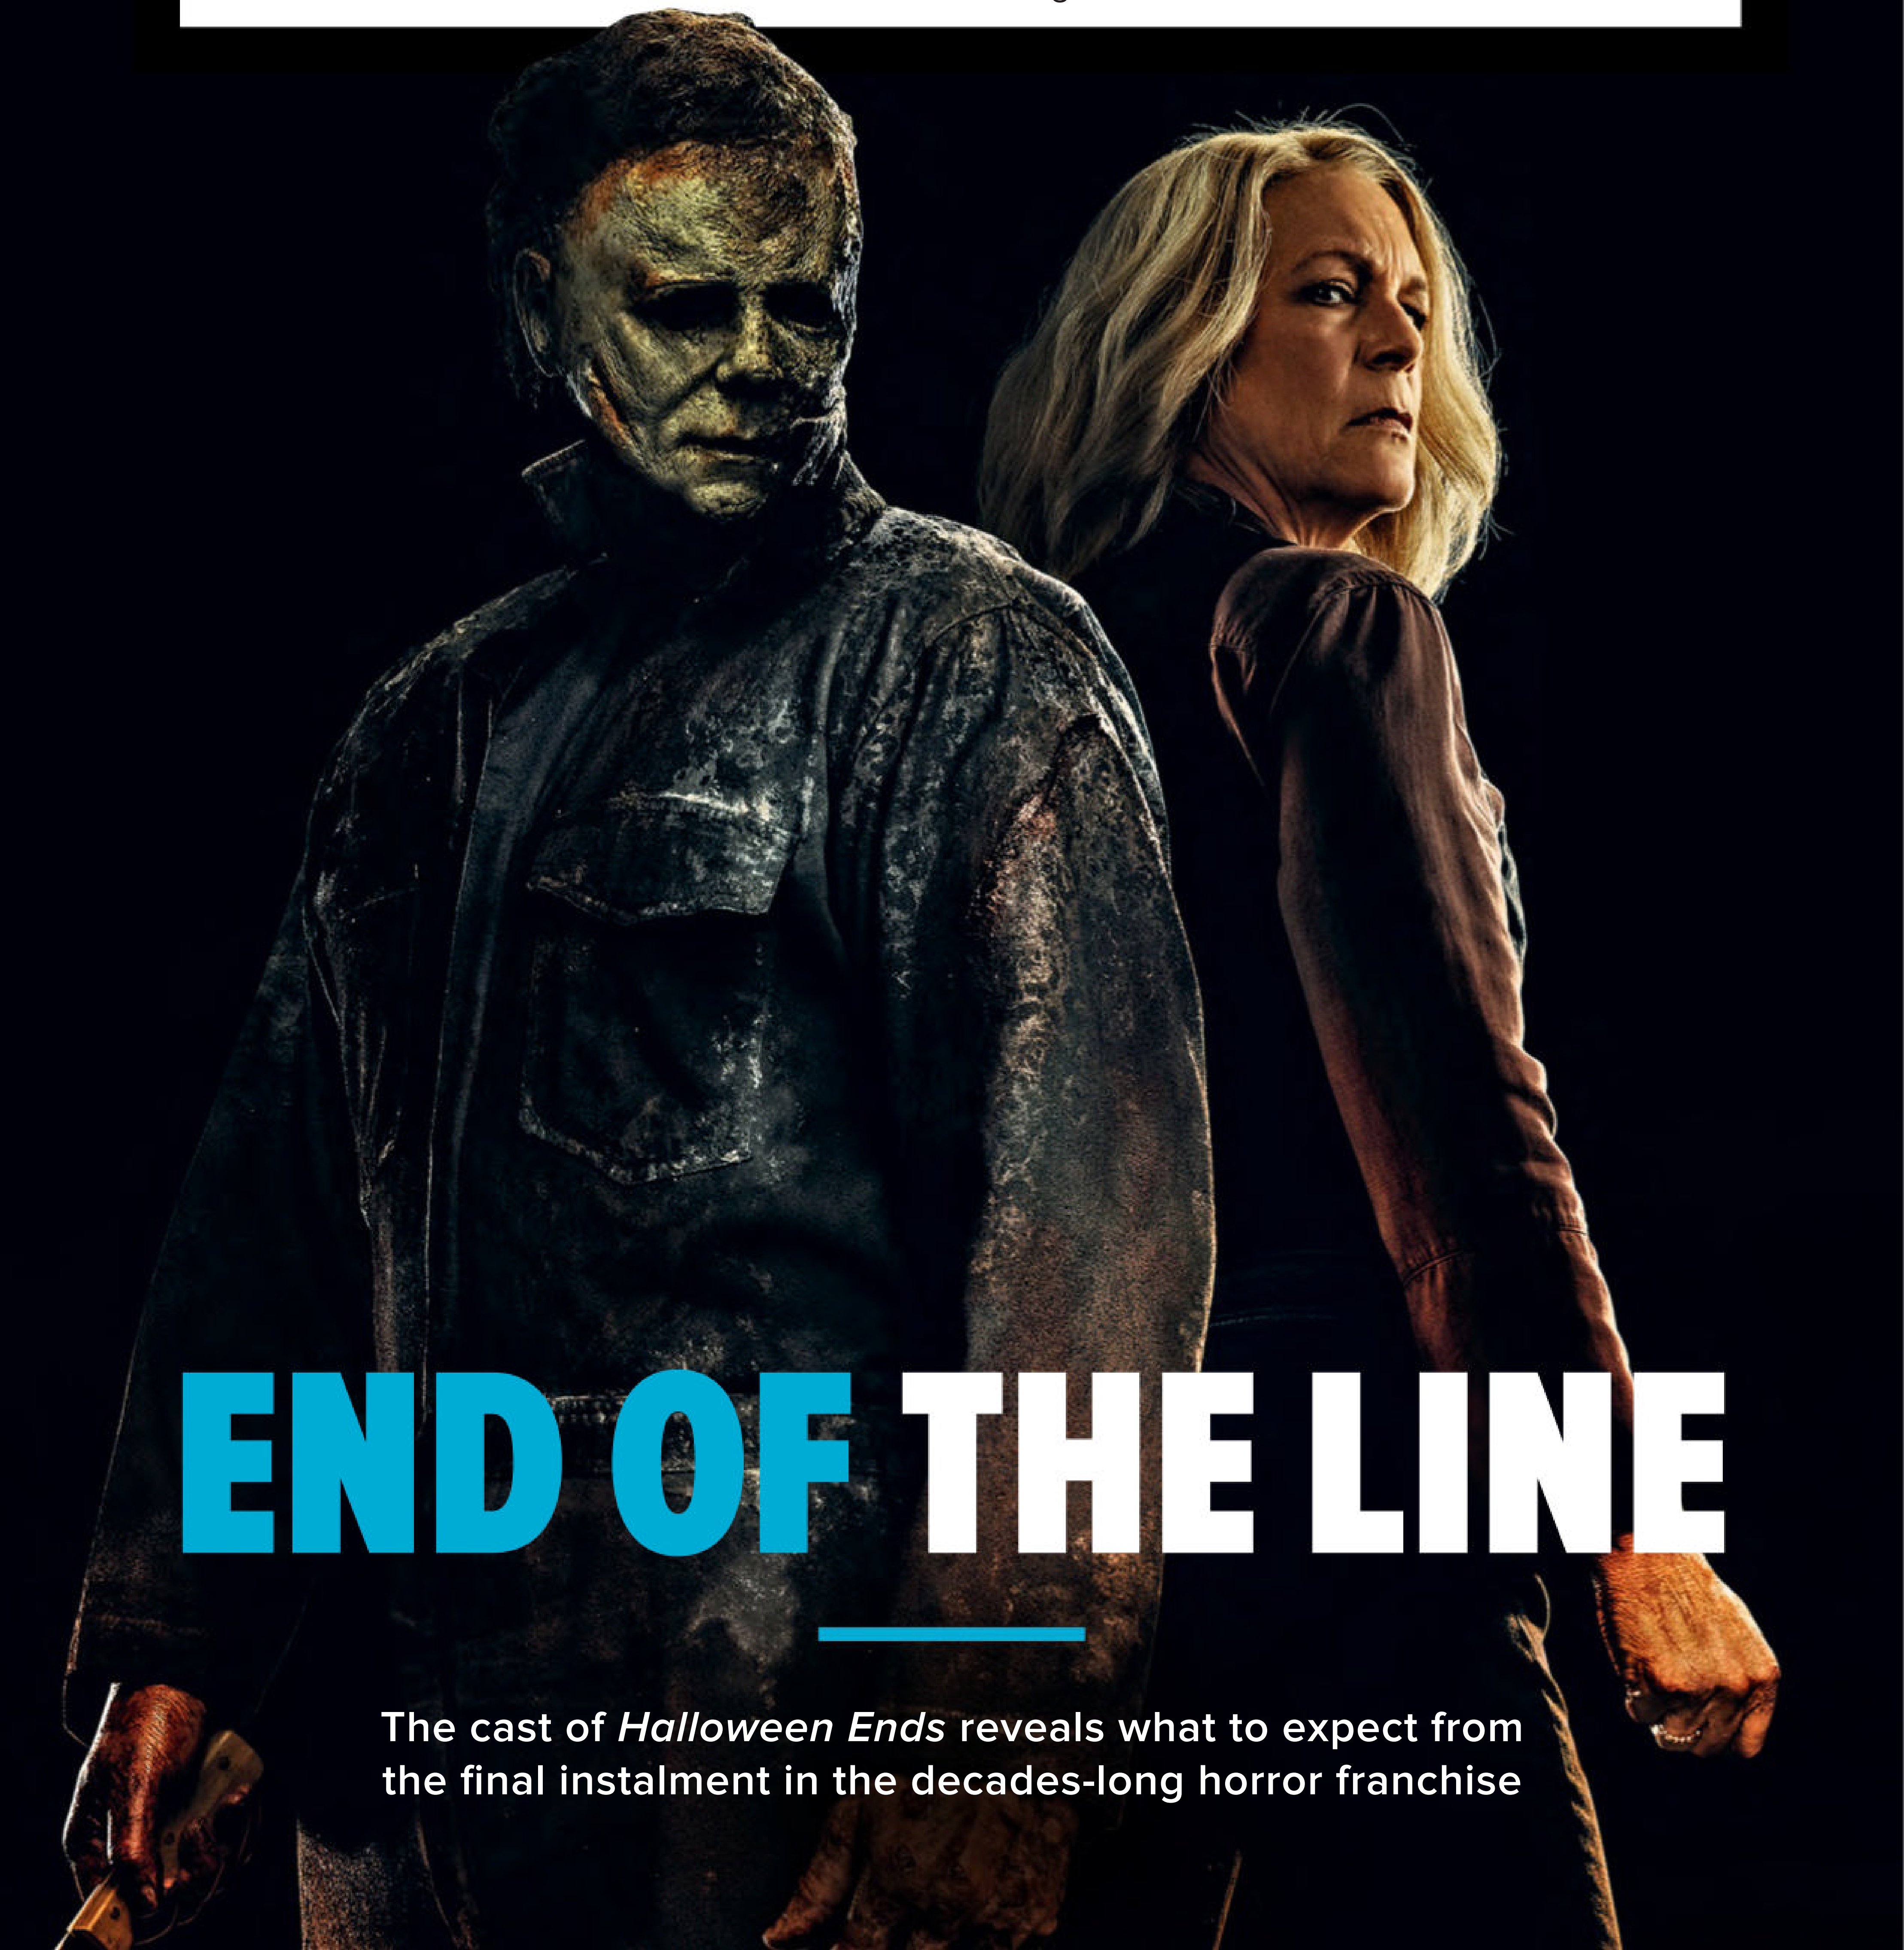
Settle in and discover the best new films coming to Foxtel Store and Foxtel Movies



END OF THE LINE

The cast of Halloween Ends reveals what to expect from the final instalment in the decades-long horror franchise

HALLOWEEN ENDS

Saturday May 13 at 8.30pm
and watch On Demand

Foxtel Movies Premiere [401]

Here we are, at the close of the epic Halloween saga. Over a fitting 13 films and 44 years, we've witnessed the battle between original final girl Laurie Strode (Jamie Lee Curtis) and masked monster Michael Myers (James Jude Courtney) play out with mass casualties. But, as the leading women – Oscar-winner Curtis, Kyle Richards and Andi Matichak – of Halloween Ends share, the war is coming to a brutal climax fans won't expect.

Halloween Ends* is largely about the effects of trauma. Allyson's (Matichak) lost both her parents and her boyfriend, Laurie has lost her daughter, but it hasn't broken them. Where are they at when we meet them four years on from the events of Halloween Kills?

JAMIE LEE CURTIS: Laurie has been given a chance at mental health help. She's been given trauma therapy, grief counselling, and when people have suffered such horrific losses, there's a choice of: 'Do I live or do I die? And if I'm going to live, I must try to have a life.' We're meeting Laurie four years after the death of her daughter, very quietly trying to have a personal life. We take her up that hope hill at the beginning of the movie and then, of course, Michael comes back and that hope gets dashed.

ANDI MATICHAK: Allyson seems relatively well adjusted. But, like any traumatic event, it lives in your body, right under the surface. It's ready to rear its ugly head at any moment – especially coming up on the anniversary of the last massacre. You're peeking into a specific moment in this young person's life and watching in real time as those cracks open in this otherwise seemingly poised survivor's facade.

Allyson has a new love interest, but he's a complicated character. What does she see in Corey (Rohan Campbell)?

MATICHAK: They are kindred spirits. They're ostracised by Haddonfield in separate ways, where Allyson's put on a pedestal and looked at as this heroic survivor and Corey is the town pariah who should be feared and condemned. They are two people who experienced incredibly traumatic events and everyone is quick to judge and extrapolate their pain, but the only person who actually gets it are the two of them.

Kyle, your character Lindsey is so strong – and we've seen you in The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills, so we know you can throw down with the best of them! But how is Lindsey different to you?

KYLE RICHARDS: Oh my gosh, she's nothing like anything on The Real Housewives, that is for sure! She's been through a lot. She's chosen to stay in this town that has terrorised her for pretty much her entire life, but she has a bond with these women who have also gone through this. I'm a strong person, but definitely very different to Lindsey.

When you came back to the franchise for Halloween Kills, that was obviously a very different experience because you were just a child when you appeared in the original Halloween in 1978. What was it like returning for this one with the same team from Kills?

RICHARDS: It was so great! People always say this, but honestly, this crew is just so incredible. And they're so tight. Like one big family on the same team trying to make the best movie possible.

Laurie Strode (Jamie Lee Curtis) and Michael Myers (James Jude Courtney) do battle for the last time in Halloween Ends

Michael Myers is one of the most iconic movie monsters of all time. What makes him so terrifying?

RICHARDS: It's the unknown and the fact that nothing takes him out. What is under that mask? I want to take it off. It always has that mystery that's so scary. And you know what? Why does nothing take him down? What is that? Then you throw in that music and forget it!

The stakes are higher than ever in this film. What can fans expect from the big finale?

CURTIS: It's a movie about a final reckoning between Laurie and Michael. There is a battle between them, and the irony is that the 2018 and 2021 movies were about a woman who was prepared for Michael every day of her life since she was 17 years old. This is a movie where she has actually moved on. Laurie doesn't see Michael coming. So the fight is much more violent, unexpected and has to be like a street brawl.

MATICHAK: Expect the unexpected. You're not going to see this coming. Enjoy the ride, be open-minded and have fun.

RICHARDS: It's the end and they knew that going into it, so Halloween devotees are going to be very excited. I think they're going to love the story. And, of course, it's gonna have all the classic Halloween thrills and Michael Myers scary stuff! ■

MARGARET'S TOP PICK

WOMEN TALKING (M)

Available from May 3

This winner of the Academy Award for Best Adapted Screenplay is the work of admired Canadian filmmaker Sarah Polley. Based on a novel by Miriam Toews, which in turn is based on events at a Mennonite community in Bolivia, it follows several women in an unnamed isolated community who have been systematically abused by their men. They hold a number of meetings in a hayloft to decide their future: stay and fight for their rights or leave?

The discussions are being recorded by sympathetic August (Ben Whishaw), because none of the women can read or write.

This fine cinematic work, beautifully realised by Polley, is a film of powerful ideas and its compassion shines through.

COURTING CHANGE

Former Diamond-turned-FOX SPORTS commentator Bianca Chatfield talks life-changing career moves and a super-sized netball season

Bianca Chatfield captains Melbourne Vixens to grand final glory in 2014

FOX SPORTS 505

When decorated netball champion Bianca Chatfield officially farewelled the court in 2015, with 59 test caps for the Australian Diamonds during her 18-year career, after occasional stints as a sideline expert, she knew a side-step into commentating would be her next move.

"I would see how these incredible women would operate and that they get to still enjoy the game, but without having to step out onto the court themselves," the Commonwealth Games gold medallist tells FOXTEL magazine. "It became something I really looked forward to doing, if I could. My body was broken and I was very happy to retire. It was a luxury to have that choice in the end."

But the decision to join renovation series The Block in 2018 with former Melbourne Vixens teammate Carla Dziwoki interrupted Chatfield's full-time transition to the box.

"We both retired at the same time and I was like, 'Let's do it! Let's get on the show,'" she says. "She thought I was crazy!"

The pair finished fourth and Chatfield, whose father is a builder, says she wouldn't hesitate to do it all again, as she "loved the experience".

"You kind of forget about the brutal parts and we're really proud of the apartment we built," she reflects. "I love that we get to look back and it's something that exists."

The former defender shares that the TV detour brought other big changes to her life, as it connected her with now-partner and one-time Married at First Sight groom Mark Scrivens.

After crossing paths on the PR circuit for their respective programs, Chatfield reached out to Scrivens on social media.

"My message was around: 'Why the hell would you have done this show? You seem like a normal person!'" she admits with a laugh. "Then our conversations from there were about what it's like when your reality show is on the air and how intense it is."

After hitting it off like a proverbial house on fire, the pair was delighted to welcome a daughter, Kyah Ziggi, last year.

"I was a big faffer with my time," Chatfield says of life pre-motherhood. "I had time, but I would procrastinate – I'd scroll on my phone, I'd talk on the phone and then sit down late at night to get things done. Now, I don't have that luxury. Whenever she naps, I'm trying to get a workout in, trying to make sure I have everything organised, so as soon as she wakes up, I can give her all my attention. I've noticed I'm much better with my time these days."

Becoming a first-time parent also coincided with Chatfield joining the FOX SPORTS commentary team, but it was a juggle she took in her stride.

"Last year was a whirlwind of new-mum life and taking on a huge role," she admits. "I don't know if it's the former athlete in me, but we love that adrenaline rush we get from feeling the pressure – that sink-or-swim attitude of, when you get out there, you have to turn it on and do your prep and off you go."

Chatfield adds that she particularly loves getting the best of both worlds as a netball commentator: "I really enjoy being able to talk about a game I'm so passionate about and feel like I'm still so in the action. You get to go through the whole roller-coaster ride of a game – the stress and the adrenaline rush – even though the result doesn't really matter when you're commentating. It's not as personal, but it's still exhilarating."

Celebrating daughter Kyah's first birthday with partner Mark Scrivens

With the season well underway, Chatfield tips defending titleholders West Coast Fever as the ones to keep an eye on.

"They have promised so much in the past... We've been waiting to see the moment they actually capitalise and win the Premiership – and they've done it [in 2022]," she says. "They're a great team who believe they can win because they've now shown they can, and I think that's been the missing link for them.

"It excites me, because every time we see Fever play, it's about how teams show up, how teams tackle them and that's where we're seeing some of the best of the other teams, when they take on West Coast."

If you're not already switched on to the Suncorp Super Netball on FOX SPORTS, Chatfield, who this season hosts educational netball series UPSHOT, which airs as part of analysis series Centre Circle, cites the unprecedented coverage as a big drawcard for viewers.

"I don't think any other sport offers the access we have," she says. "You get to be right in the heart of the game and we ask the hard questions of the coaches in the middle of the action. We go into the huddles, listening to what's going on with tactics and what each team is trying to do. You get every bit of the action you need and more."

PHINS UP

Few expected the Dolphins to be successful in their debut NRL season, but the club is proving doubters wrong and the hype train is now full steam ahead

Dolphins prop Jarrod Wallace (left) in action against the Broncos

It's been the rugby league feel-good story of 2023 – a new NRL franchise that was written off by most, joining as the league's 17th club and proving everyone wrong by enjoying a blitzing start to life in the big time. Indeed, the Dolphins, Brisbane's second NRL venture, have fast become the hottest ticket in the Queensland capital.

They may be the new boys in NRL, but the Dolphins boast more than 75 years of history, having been a powerhouse of the Queensland Cup as the Redcliffe Dolphins, based in Brisbane's north. So it should come as no surprise the club has hit the ground running with its huge supporter base and a foundation geared for success.

However, it doesn't mean there haven't been naysayers. Having only gained an NRL licence in late 2021, it was widely expected that the club would struggle this year, even with Wayne Bennett at the helm. But writing off the master coach is fraught with danger, as his track record across almost 900 NRL games is unparalleled and he has the Dolphins humming.

"His track record speaks for itself and he has done it all," Dolphins prop Jarrod Wallace tells FOXTEL magazine. "His experience calms our players, and his game plans are simple but very effective because he gets the best out of everyone. He believes in us and gives us confidence, and won't let anyone get complacent.

"We will never roll over and opposition teams always have to work hard against us. That is typical of every team Wayne has coached. The hype and emotion of the Dolphins has been such a high and Wayne has been handling all that really well."

Wallace has the benefit of having played under Bennett before, at the Brisbane Broncos in 2015 and 2016, and was confident the coach would have the Dolphins primed.

"I really wanted to be a part of the Dolphins and I'm lucky Wayne was happy to give me the opportunity," he says with a smile. "This was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to be a foundation player at a new club. Of course, the Dolphins have been around for [76] years, so the history is there, but to come as an experienced player and help build it from the ground up is a massive honour."

The cross-town rivalry with the Broncos may be in its early days, but it has already reached fever pitch, as seen in the epic clash between the two clubs at Suncorp Stadium in round four, which saw the Broncos prevail in a classic.

"It was great how we and the Broncos entered that game after enjoying 3-0 winning starts to the season," says Wallace. "This rivalry will go on for years and there is already so much hype.

"The fans have been fantastic, and to get 32,500 of them at our opening game was unreal. The Dolphins have been so successful during the years in the Queensland Cup, and fans deserve to have an NRL team they can be proud of."

Those fans will enjoy seeing the Dolphins playing at home during Magic Round, which sees 16 clubs (the Knights have a bye) taking to the field in Brisbane the weekend of May 5-7.

"To play Magic Round as a second Brisbane team is so good," Wallace agrees. "All the fanbases are there and hopefully they have a soft spot for the Dolphins. The concept is fantastic and this year will be bigger and better. Rugby league is king in Queensland and everyone is so passionate about it. Playing for a Queensland club, you feel it every time you take the field." ■

MAKING THE BEST OF IT

Best on Ground offers the ideal way for footy fans to wind down

▶ From the elation of a win to the heartbreak of defeat, come Saturday night, it's often a roller-coaster of emotions for AFL fans. That's why FOX FOOTY's Best on Ground fulfils the perfect role.

Co-host Kath Loughnan says the panel, which includes commentator Mark Howard, Brisbane great Jonathan Brown and Collingwood champion Nathan Buckley, strikes just the right balance.

"The viewers enjoy watching something different. We're always about the hardcore analysis, which is great, but there's also a bit of time for some fun and to have a few laughs," she says. "We really enjoy the live crowd and feed off the audience."

Buckley's pulling double duty, having joined marquee analysis show On the Couch this season. And, while known for his serious demeanour, he loves a few laughs: "It's great fun to share with good people and a good way to finish off a Saturday."

Filming took place in and around Austin, Texas for authenticity

Behind the scenes...

of Love & Death

Crime-drama Love & Death may be based on a true story, along with source material from the book Evidence of Love: A True Story of Passion and Death in the Suburbs and several Texas Monthly articles, but if there's one thing director and executive producer Lesli Linka Glatter wants audiences to know, it's this: "If you think you know the story, you don't."

While the 1980 case of axe-wielding housewife Candy Montgomery has been well publicised over the years, Glatter insists there's so much more to the story and the woman herself.

"There is a really horrible crime at the centre of this story," she acknowledges, "but what I and, I think, these amazing actors were interested in was delving deep into the character and the psychology of the character, and why and how this could happen – not just the crime."

While Elizabeth Olsen admits she didn't realise it was based on a true story when she first read the scripts, she says she was instantly drawn to Candy.

"It was a character I really wanted to play," she reveals. "It was really a dream project. I'm really proud of it."
